ACADEMIC BIOGRAPHY

Chi Adanna Mgbako is clinical professor of law and director of the Walter Leitner International Human Rights Clinic in the Leitner Center for International Law and Justice at Fordham Law School. She and her students work on projects in partnership with social justice organizations focusing primarily on gender justice and anti-carceral human rights advocacy. She has conducted human rights fieldwork in many countries, including Botswana, Cambodia, Ethiopia, India, Japan, Kenya, Lebanon, Liberia, Malawi, Mauritius, Namibia, Nigeria, Rwanda, Sierra Leone, South Africa, Uganda, and the United States.

Mgbako is the author of To Live Freely in This World: Sex Worker Activism in Africa (New York University Press). Her scholarship has also appeared in the Harvard Journal of Law & Gender, Oxford Research Encyclopedia of African History, Georgetown Journal of International Law, Harvard Human Rights Journal, and the Yale Journal of International Affairs, among other publications. Her writing for the popular press and scholar-activism have been featured in the New York Times International Edition, BBC News Focus on Africa, the Guardian, HuffPost, and the Washington Post: Monkey Cage.

Mgbako is a graduate of Harvard Law School and Columbia University and a former fellow with the International Crisis Group. She has been honored as a New York Law Journal Rising Star, National Law Journal Top 40 Lawyer of Color Under 40, Fordham Law School's Public Interest Professor of the Year, and a recipient of the Police Reform Organizing Project's Citizen of the City Award. In 2017, she received the Association of American Law Schools Section on Clinical Legal Education's M. Shanara Gilbert Award, one of the highest honors in clinical legal education.
